

ATTACHMENT-BASED PRACTICE WITH ADULTS:

Understanding strategies and promoting positive change

A 3-DAY COURSE facilitated by CLARK BAIM and LYDIA GUTHRIE

10th – 12th October 2017

Venue: Novotel, Broad Street, Birmingham B1 2HT, UK

This course is equal parts theory and practical applications. It is for professionals from a range of disciplines who work with adults whose behaviour may place themselves or others at risk of harm.

What the course covers:

- Understanding the key elements of contemporary attachment theory.
- Learning a model of attachment that is strengths-based, non-labelling and non-pathologising.
- Improving interviewing skills by learning to focus your questions on specific memory systems.
- Identifying how attachment strategies are expressed in speech and behaviour.
- Understanding mental illness and personality disorder through the lens of attachment theory.
- How attachment theory helps our understanding of the long-term effects of trauma and loss.
- Using the LEARN Model for improving psychological integration.
- A six point model for case formulation, tracking progress, and programme evaluation.

Previous feedback:

"The training was probably the best I have ever been on. Brilliant, thought-provoking and a topic I will definitely continue to learn about!"

The course is a mixture of presentation, audio and video clips, and small group tasks.

Who is this course for? This course is for professionals who work with parents or other adults who pose a risk to themselves or others. This includes those working in child welfare / child protection settings, safeguarding, adult mental health, social care or counselling services, criminal justice and multi-disciplinary contexts that cross adult and children's services. This course is also relevant for professionals who supervise staff in the above areas.

Please note: All delegates will receive a copy of Attachment-based Practice with Adults, by Clark Baim and Tony Morrison, published 2011 by Pavilion (retail price £115).

Clark Baim, M.Ed., UKCP, is a Senior Trainer in Psychodrama Psychotherapy and Co-Director of the Birmingham Institute for Psychodrama. He and Lydia Guthrie are Co-Directors of Change Point Ltd., a training organisation focusing on the social care, mental health, voluntary and criminal justice sectors. In the 1980s, Clark was the founder and first Director of Geese Theatre UK, using applied drama in prisons and probation. In the 1990s, he worked as a group psychotherapist for five years at HM Prison Grendon, and from 2000 - 2012, he was a trainer for facilitators of the Probation Service's Sexual Offending Groupwork Programmes. He has studied extensively in the Dynamic-Maturational Model of Attachment with Dr. Patricia Crittenden, and developed this 3-day course with Tony Morrison in 2002.

Lydia Guthrie, MA Hons, MSc, Dip SW has a long track record of work in the criminal justice and voluntary sectors. She qualified as a social worker in 1998 and worked for the Probation Service between 1998 and 2009. She has held a variety of roles including Treatment Manager of the Thames Valley Sexual Offending Groupwork Programme and Senior Probation Officer, supervising a team of probation officers in Oxford. This work focused on the risk assessment and management of high risk offenders, and on the delivery of programmes for sexual offending, domestic abuse and partners of offenders. Between 2007 and 2012, Lydia was a trainer for the Probation Service's Sexual Offending Groupwork Programmes. She has an MSc in Attachment Theory from the University of Roehampton.

"Very well organised, very informative, and highly knowledgeable trainers. It is honestly the best training I have EVER been on, and a must for all people involved in mental health."
